presentation

«Sharing» is the reason why I created this blog in 2013 entitled “Roulettes et sac”. You could translate it in English by “Wheels and backpack” which is a play on word as I always travel with my wheelchair.

By reading my blog, people will discover through my pictures what I’ve seen and will follow me all along the journey through my stories. I will give advice travelers can get benefit from.

I share my moment of happiness, my moment of doubt. I tell about the people I met, the smiles we shared and the magic of travelling.

Travel in a wheelchair ? It's possible !

The blog "Roulettes & sac" is followed by a lot of people : disabled people of course but not only. It's also followed by people who love travelling.

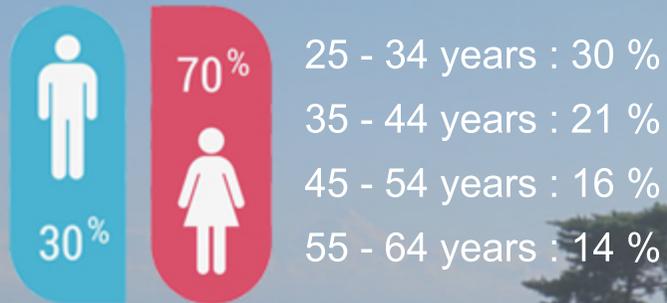

Travelling on my wheelchair is not always convenient. That's why I decided to share only real experiences and I give my feedbacks of the places and the activities I have tested by my own. This way trust between me and my readers is entire.

Disability is clearly a highly topical issue. Being able to welcome people with impaired mobility should be a priority.

Here are some ideas for partnerships. Do not hesitate to contact me and to let me know your projects.

- .Promotion of your destination or activity (photographs, articles, videos ...)
- .Promotion on social networks (live and replay)
- .Writing guide about tourism and disability
- .Reviews of hotels, restaurants, activities,...
- .Press trip
- .Brand ambassador

By respect for my readers, I only speak about products tested and visited destinations.

After studies in literature and arts, I have decided to discover the world. I travel most of the time alone since years now.

Curious, adventurous and friendly, I wish I can inspire future travelers. Disabled or not, each individual has the power to escape and realize his dreams. You just have to believe in yours dreams.
